VALIANT LADY — VIRGIN VOYAGES — MAY 2026 DRY DOCK

BEFORE

The Roundabout has always been the atrium at the centre of life aboard ship, where Sailors first meet the ship's personality and a spiral staircase connects decks.

AFTER

Dichroic fins and oversized furniture that once broke the atrium into disconnected zones have been removed, replaced by sculpted banquette seating in warm woods and brass, opening sightlines from the staircase clear through to the sea.

DRAUGHT HAUS - BAR AND LOUNGE

Reframed in warm wood and brass with illuminated glass shelving, Draught Haus activates the same footprint in different registers across a single day: coffee in the morning, a casual afternoon lounge, and a cocktail bar as the room fills before dinner.

FUTURE VOYAGES AND SHORE THINGS

The twist was Valiant Lady’s spirit colour: purple. The spread is subtle but intentional, leaning into jammy reds, plums and lavenders that read as distinctly Valiant Lady rather than a repeat of her sister ship.

MAIN LOUNGE

New architectural moments give that openness purpose. The Roundabout’s signature portholes create their own small rituals: a spot to peer out and daydream, a toast with a best friend, or a seat to pull up for a game.

MAIN LOUNGE

On Valiant Lady, The Roundabout is no longer just a space to pass through. It is a place to linger, made possible by opening sightlines to the sea and letting one room work as hard as three.VV
